Presbyterian Pastor Finishes Series Describing Holy Land Tour in 1924

Rev. R. L. McLeod, Jr., Gives Interesting Account of Land of the Pharaohs in Last Two Lectures Published in This Issue—Tells of Pyramids and Tombs of the Kings—Egyptian Cities Discussed.

(Note by Editor—This is the final of a series of lectures on the Holy Lands that have been appearing in this paper after being delivered in the First Presbyterian Church by Rev. R. L. McLeod, Jr. We have enjoyed reading them, ourselves, and we feel sure that our readers have. The article that follows comprises two lectures since the last was not published in our issue of a week ago. The last two lectures are being run in two instalments, the concluding one to appear next week.)

The Land of the Pharaohs
(By R. L. McLeod, Jr.)

A full day's journey by rail from Jerusalem brought us to the Suez Canal—and Egypt. On this journey we passed gorges, rock tombs, terraced hills, and broad fields of grain, but few trees on the entire journey with the exception of palms after we had left Palestine, and the orange and lemon groves. After a few hours' travel from Jerusalem we reached where Peter healed Aeneas, an important junction, with the busiest railroad platform we had seen in all Palestine. Olive and orange groves and fertile fields surround this city of 8,000 people. A dozen miles to the Northwest is Jaffa, the Joppa where Peter raised Dorcas to life and had the vision of a church in which should be no distinction between Jew and Gentile. Traveling a few miles farther we stopped at Ashdod, a place of several thousand people, and passed near the ruins of Ashkelon, where a huge image of Herod the Great has been found along with statues of Apollo, Venus and Victory. Charming company! On this way down the coast we passed fields of growing wheat; cactus hedges; herds of cattle and flocks of sheep; camel and donkey trains. No wonder the Philistines fought to hold this rich territory! Finally we reached the southernmost of the league of five Philistine cities (Gaza, Ashkelon, Ashdod, Gath, and Ekron) so formidable in the time of Judges. We could not help recalling the exploits of Samson, how he tied foxes tail to tail, with a burning torch between them to set fire to fields ready for harvesting, how he carried away the Gate of Gaza, bar and all, to the astonishment and discomfiture of his enemies. We thought of him, too, as forgetting his covenant with God, becoming the slave of passion, fettered, blinded and grinding grain in his prison here at Gaza, then finally regaining his strength through repentance and pulling down the pillars of the temple. Gaza was virtually destroyed in the recent war by the retreating Turks, but is again coming into its own. After leaving Gaza we were to have many hours with nothing but the Sea on one side and desert on the other to look upon as we went through

Gaza

The Wilderness of Shur

As we crossed this wilderness of desert with little growing except cactus or stubble here and there, we thought of Moses and the Israelites as they journeyed across here. Forty years of wandering because they turned to other than the true God. All along the route we traveled were iron pipe joints, rolls of chicken wire, and here and there pieces of wagons and machinery partly covered by the sands. Right here let me say if any of my readers care to read an exciting book of adventure in engineering and bravery read "The Revolt in Arabia" and the account of how Allenby built this road, how he brought water from the Nile through pipes for ver loo miles, hw he used chicken wire made in this country for a road across the desert to keep heavy laden wagons, guns, etc., from sinking deeply in the sand, and how they had to fight their way along. Time and space here will not permit an account of this, however the road over which we traveled to Suez was built under such difficulties. The desert air in the daytime is anything but pleasant; hot and stuffy, for the windows of the compartments had to stay closed to keep the sand from being blown in the cars. Late in the afternoon as the desert cooled we again came in sight of vegetation as we neared the Suez Canal, about 148 feet in width, and 40 feet in depth. We soon ferried across, passed through the customs house, again boarded a train and after three hours we were in Cairo, the largest city of Egypt.

Egypt

"Egypt contains more wonders than any other land, and is preeminent above all the countries in the world"—Herodotus.

Here before the beginnings of any history recorded outside the Bible, a civilization had risen and flourished to leave behind it imperishable memorials. A small land, too, is Egypt, so small that you could stow away twenty-five countries of its size in the state of Texas; but like Palestine and Greece, Switzerland and Holland, and England and Scotland, we find it a mighty force in history. In shape the land is a ribbon 550 miles long with a mean breadth of 23 miles. A population of about thirteen million people.

No civilization can be understood without a study of the physical conditions under which it was developed. Latitude, temperature, humidity, the elevation, soil, proximity to the sea or great rivers, have all had a profound influence in determining the occupation, habits, characteristics, customs, laws, government, religion and social institutions of all peoples and especially of ancient peoples. Let us turn therefore to the land rather than to its inhabitants.

The Nile

All great oriental civilizations have arisen in the fertile valleys of great rivers, like the Euphrates and the Tigris, the Indus and the Ganges, the Hoang-Ho and the Yang-tse-Kiang. But no other land and no other people have been so dependent on any stream as Egypt and the Egyptians on the Nile.

With the Amazon, the Congo and the Mississippi, it ranks as one of the four longest rivers in the world, being 4,062 miles, our own Mississippi exceeding it by only fifty miles.

The Nile has no affluent for more than 1,000 miles before it reaches the Mediterranean; it is constantly being drained for purposes of irrigation and to supply the daily needs of over ten million people, and a vast volume is emptied into the sky daily by evaporation as it winds through this desert country, still it pours 61,500 cubic feet of water into the sea every second. But for the Nile, the Libyan and Arabian deserts would unite to blot out Egypt.

MORE REDHOT BARGAINS

In this issue of The Sentinel, Revell Furniture Co. is offering a score or more of furniture bargains that should appeal to all classes of people. In making a careful study of the prices quoted, the ordinary man or woman who has had little experience in buying furniture very easily can see that some remarkable values are listed. One item in particular that sold originally at $25 and that is now offered at $2.50, should go quickly. True, it is a second-hand item but good furniture rarely shows that it has been used, especially after it has been gone over by those who are familiar with the art of putting the touch of newness to it. Other articles are quoted at great reductions from the regular price and since, on some of them, a limited quantity only is on hand, it will pay readers of this paper who want some particular article to be found in a furniture store, to select what they want and to not delay in visiting this splendid store.

With each purchase of items listed in the ad, a beautiful lunch plate is given absolutely free.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX MAN TO BE HERE MARCH 1-2

The Federal government, realizing that the average income tax payer experiences some difficulty in making up his income tax returns, every year sends deputy collectors to the various cities of the different states to aid individuals in filling in their reports. The last day for filing income tax returns is March 15th.

Deputy Collector Dickins, connected with the Mississippi revenue force, will be in Grenada on next Friday and Saturday, March 1st and 2nd, to assist taxpayers in this section. He will be at the courthouse instead of at the postoffice, where it has in the past been customary for the collectors to be. Those desirous of information and assistance will do well to see Mr. Dickins while he is here.

BEGINS SERMON SERIES NEXT SUNDAY EVENING

Having concluded last Sunday evening his series of lectures on a tour of the Holy Lands several years ago, Rev. R. L. McLeod, Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, announces that he will begin a series of discourses next Sunday evening on the subject, "The Master's Methods of Preaching and Teaching".

Mr. McLeod is a student and a thinker. He is one of those men who does not touch upon a subject until he has gone into all its phases in a thorough and painstaking manner. Yet his manner is not that of the stilted speaker but he couches what he has to say in language that is easy to comprehend. His subject for the forthcoming sermons should interest every Christian and what he says should prove informative as well as interesting.

The community as a whole is invited to attend these services at any time.

GRENADA GETS TASTE ICY WINTER WEATHER

Shrubbery and Trees, Loaded with Icicles, Present Beautiful Picture, Even to Eyes Not Artistic—Mercury Now Rising.

The rain and sleet Wednesday and the sleet and the rain Wednesday night presented a picture to the eye Thursday morning that beggars description, and one that any artist would linger on, particularly if he had never seen the sight before. The limbs and branches of shrubbery and trees with their silvery icicles as they hung their heads and bowed their bodies, as it were, as if to show every particle and piece of their decorations, bespoke once again that some finite power or mind made possible such things—that they could not have come by chance, but that some power who held the keys to beauty and grandeur had conceived them and made them possible. Of course most people had seen similar sights before, sights even more grand and beautiful when snow and icicles both adorned the trees and when the snow blanketed the earth.

It was still cold, real cold, Thursday morning, but not so cold as might have been expected. The thermometers registered around freezing temperature and the icicles were melting.

It appears that February is to give the most winter like weather of the season. January was a comparatively mild and beautiful month with but little rain and very little intense cold. The thermomter registered as low as 16 for one or two nights in January but hardly had the indicator reached that point until the mercury began to ascend again. The ground hog could not see his shadow February second, hence the prophecies that there is to be an early spring, and the hope of an early spring is still further promised by an early Easter.

The cold has blanketed the South, indeed the whole country. In many places it has been deep and at many points in the South a little north of this place, the snow has been from 3 to 6 inches deep. Nature has performed one of its many wonderful things in sending snow and sleet; they may not always be welcome nevertheless they add a beautiful carpet to mother earth and are said to mean much to health and to the coming crops. The children always delight in snow. It is one of the feasts for childhood.

DISPLAY FLAGS TODAY

At the meeting of the Young Men's Business Club Thursday at noon it was decided to display today the U. S. flags purchased some weeks ago by the business interests of the town, in commemoration of the birth of George Washington, first president of the United States and the "father of his country". Today is a national holiday and the day will be appropriately observed throughout the nation. The postoffice and local banks will be closed.

A committee was named by Jay Gore, president of the club, to secure a sample of the city water and forward it to the state chemist at Starkville for analysis.

The same committee that has had charge of the soliciting of stock subscriptions for the proposed overall factory is to continue its work until the remainder of the necessary $25,000 stock is taken.

Since Glenwild Plantation has been officially recognized by the U. S. Government as an airport and is so listed, the committee previously named to request the city council to place signs on various buildings in Grenada pointing to the landing field was urged to lay the matter before the aldermen at their next meeting.

The club is to meet again on Thursday, March 7th.

MRS. H. H. BLOODWORTH OF CASCILLA IS DEAD

Mrs. H. H. Bloodworth of Cascilla departed this life at her home Wednesday night and her remains were laid to rest in the old Ashland church burying ground Thursday afternoon after appropriate funeral services. She had been in bad health for a number of years, thus her physical condition was not strong enough to endure the shifting weather of this winter. She was a good wife and a loving mother and ever a friend to the needy and the distressed. In her girlhood she united with the Baptist church and had been a consistent member of her faith. Her maiden name was Sallie Pressgrove. She was one of a large family. She was a bright and beautiful girl and was exceedingly popular not only for the charms of her person but for the beauty of her character. She is survived by her husband and two children and one brother, Arnold M. Pressgrove, besides many other relatives and friends. She was an aunt of Mr. Rice Pressgrove of Grenada. To the sorrowing The Sentinel tenders sincere sympathy.

Awakens After Sleep Of Forty-Nine Years

Old Inhabitant Cannot Comprehend Happenings of Present Day after Being Dead to World Since 1880 and Discusses Marvels.

Mister E[illegible]: Pardon me, sir, I have been [illegible]ep. I came to Grenada in 186[illegible] at the time Grant was gittin h[illegible] elected President. The next ti[illegible] came to Grenada was in 1880 [illegible]n the Republicans were countin[illegible] see how much Garfield and [illegible]rthur had beat Hancock and English. I made up my mind to take a rest, so I went off down in the hollow by the spring branch and crawled up in a hollow log and went to sleep and I slept until the other day. I woke up February 1. I looked around and saw all the tree I went to sleep in was gone except the hollow part. The spring branch had become a great creek, an sez I to myself "this aint me or either this aint home". I got up and out and stretched my laigs but could not walk. I hollered for help but my voice did not work. Finally I got able to amble around. I reched down and got me a drink of water and walked on up the creek and saw a man with a cooking stove right in the thicket. He run and I did too. They told me afterward that I saw a still. It sho was still. I got up on top of that hill whar there used to be mud and where the wagins used to track along in mud up to the hub, I saw a wide road and rocks and sand in it. I sez to myself again "this aint me". I straggled along down the road and met a man in a car—they told me afterwards it was a car—and he had a lot of sacks and they said he was the rural mail man. I said I met that car, I didn't. I saw that car coming and I tuk to the woods. I sez to my self agin "this aint me". Atter a while I met the negro they now calls Uncle Rube. Rube and I used to work side by side in the field and hunt coon and possum at night. I sits down on Rube's front gallery and his old woman fixed me somethin to eat. Sez I to Rube, what become of everything and everybody and what time o' day or year is it. And Rube said I had been hid out now well nigh 49 years and told me that things had changed mightily. I sez to my self again "this aint me or else I'm in another country", and you may not know it, but its the truth, I got scared and begin to think maybe I was dead and that I was in that middle country, and in spite of myself I started to run. Now to be perfectly honest I did run a little anyhow. Rube came atter me and persuaded me that I was all right and that this was Grenada County. I axed Rube about old friends, and he tole me that this one was dead and that one was dead and tother one was dead, and I purty near wished I was dead myself. I felt so lonesome. I sez to myself agin "this aint me". Rube carried me that night to Mr. Kerdine's. He sed he did not know me and that he had heard 'em say that I was drowned, murdered or had run away and the man was just afeard to let me stay with him. He was a grandson of old man Pete Sharon. I went back and stayed with Rube. He gave me a good bed and plenty to eat. Thur next day Rube carried me out to the store and thar I saw lots of folks. They axed me a thousand questions, and you know I could not tell 'em much about myself. Some wise guy called me Rip Perry Winkle and I swattered him. There was no rip about me. I sez to myself again "this aint me".

I spent the night with my friend Jim Haskins and his wife. When I last saw Jim he was courtin Miss Susie Meathouse but they didn't marry. Jim told me that I was that man Rip Van Winkle and that I had been either dead or asleep. I sez Jim these artos—tell me about 'em, and he did. Why we used to haul our cotton to town in ox wagons and most of the time mud was knee deep. It tuk us two days to make a trip to town, 16 miles away, and back. We hauled all our goods in ox wagons and here now they tells me they goes to town in 30 minutes—too swift for me. I aint been in one of those artos and I aint goin to been in one. That mail carrier—they tell me the government jist carries that mail right to your door or almost to your front gait. I heard something fluttering in the air and the first thing I thought of was that big old bald headed eagle that used to fly around Pa's farm. I thought that eagle had caught a rooster and that they were fighting it out, but jes then I located the thing and it looked like a dug out with wings. I said take ker, I'm gitting away from here. Sez I to myself "this aint me". Jim followed me and begged me to come back. We went down into the woods and sat down on a log and Jim told me that that are thing we seed in the air was an airplane and that folks were riding in it. I said nothing. I couldn't. Next day Jim and me tuck dinner with Sam Slocum and family. Had not been in the house fifteen minutes fore sumpin on the wal right by me rung out loud. I jumped up and got my hat. I told 'em I did not care to be pranked with that way. But after parleying, I stayed. I saw Sam, he went and tuk up something and sez "hello" and then he and somebody talked. I sez to my self this "aint me", I had better be going and then they told me these artos, telephones and airships were everywhere. That night we were sitting by the fire and Sam sez, "Rip" for that is what they would call me, "let me show you the radio". And he opened up the thing and I heard a man say he was in Chicago, and sich talking and singing as they carried on, shucks it was enough. Sez I to my self, "this aint me". I went over to Grenada and begin to ask about many men I uster kno and they told me they had gone to the other world. I stopped. I listened, and sez I to myself mebbe the reason I was not gone was because I was off somewhere and was just overlooked. Then I began to think about what Parson Brown and my mother said about living right and making peace with God and I went upstairs over a store and prayed as mother used to show me how. I did not see the Grenada I used to see. Why they've got water there that you don't have to get out of a well; you just turn a screw and the water comes. They get light on the end of a wire, and there is no mud in the streets—they are as hard as rocks. But I felt lonesome. I moaned for those I used to see. "Fellers if this is me, I have failed to keep up an acquaintance with myself", and I wondered just a little had I been missed. I am going to subscribe myself, as the Man Who Could Not Live in the Past and See the Present.

STOCK TRESPASSING ON SACRED GROUNDS

"One Interested" Calls Attention to Depredations of Live Stock in Odd Fellows Cemetery—Begs That It Be Stopped.

Editor Sentinel:

Permit me to call attention to a matter which concerns the hearts of most of the people of Grenada, and that is that cattle, and frequently horses and mules, and hogs are often seen in Odd Fellows' Cemetery, our sacred city of the dead, and the place where all that is mortal of many of the loved ones of many of us are laid away. More than once during the past few months when visiting the cemetery on Sunday afternoon, as had been my custom for several years, I have seen hogs rooting in the lots where are the mounds which mark the place where somebody's loved one was laid away. It is easy at any time almost to see where stock has been roaming over these sacred grounds and often one sees that hogs have been ploughing into the ground at places that will make the serious minded almost shudder. I am calling attention to this for several reasons, First, because the whole town ought to know it and in the next place, I am directing attention to the depredations of live stock so that our officers may know it, and again I am calling attention to these things that the community as a whole may take steps to see that it is stopped. We have a stock law. The county has a stock law, and all live stock of any kind which is allowed to run loose or which is out of the place where their owners keep them, is depredating and is subject to action by those injured or some officer.

This is an important matter, and now that our worthy and efficient Marshal has been given the task of looking after loose stock, I believe that something will be done. It is provoking to those whose departed are lying in the cemetery to see stock roaming around the grounds and it makes one wonder why Grenada's officials have been so busy with other things that this important matter has not been given attention.

While writing about the cemetery, I want to say another thing and that is that our cemetery is not cared for as it should be and is not nearly so well kept as it was when the ladies of Grenada gave it individual attention. The cemetery association needs more money and we ought to put our heads together and see that more money is provided so that this important work may be carried on as it should be. The cemetery as it is being kept now and as it has been kept for the past few years reflects discreditably upon all the people of the town. "City Beautiful" and the present upkeep of Odd Fellows' Cemetery does not harmonize.

BISHOP GREEN TO PREACH HERE ON EASTER SUNDAY

Just before going to press The Sentinel learned that Bishop William Mercer Green, of the Episcopal Church, will preach at All Saints Episcopal Church in Grenada at the morning service on Easter Sunday, March 31.

Bishop Green is no stranger to Grenada, having on numerous occasions delivered sermons to congregations of local people. He is one of Mississippi's great churchmen and should be greeted by a large congregation here.

Knox Cites Statute Requiring Secrecy

Attorney General Refers to Mississippi Law Imposing Penalty for Divulgence of Payers of Income and Inheritance Taxes.

Attorney General Knox's letter and the statute denying the right of state officers to reveal income and inheritance taxpayers follow:

Honorable D. R. McGehee, Chairman,
Honorable W. C. Batson, Vice Chairman,
Committee on Public Offices,
House of Representatives.
Gentlemen:

I have carefully examined your resolution of February 2nd. A reexamination of my report to you in the light of your resolution reveals the fact that an itemized statement of all fees collected by me with the name of the person paying the same and the date thereof, and the purpose for which paid, and showing the amount received is contained in my report. All of these items were collected through my office as a result of the efforts of myself or my assistants by suit, or otherwise.

I find that the only items where the names of the taxpayers are omitted are those from whom I collected income and inheritance tax.

I intentionally refrained from giving the names of the persons, firms and corporations from whom I collected inheritance and income taxes, for the reason that under the provisions of section 40 of chapter 132, laws of 1924, a copy of which I herewith enclose, it would be a violation of the law which carries a high penalty for me to "divulge or make known in any manner the amount of income or any particulars set forth or disclosed in any report or return under this act." In addition to an enormous fine and imprisonment, the penalty for violating this act also renders incapable any state officer who violates the act, from holding any public office for five years thereafter.

Section 32, chapter 134, laws of 1924, a copy of which I herewith enclose, contains the same secrecy clause as to inheritance or estate taxes as it does in regard to income taxes. In neither event would I be authorized or protected in violating these two secrecy clauses of the law, except in response to the proper judicial order. I have the names of the persons, firms and corporations in my office in a secret file, showing from whom I collected these income and inheritance taxes, which I would not mind showing to any member of the committee at any time if they care to see them, with the understanding that they would not make known the names of the parties, etc.

I state further that all of the files in these cases where I have collected inheritance and income taxes were promptly returned to the Tax Commission office when each case was finally settled, and unless I could have those files before me it would be humanly impossible to give accurately from memory a history of each individual transaction.

I would thank you if you would each give this matter a thorough thought and study and then write me a definite letter about just what you are expecting me to do in this regard. I am sure that no member of the committee would try to entrap me or lead me into something that would subject me to the high punishment as provided in these two statutes.

In conclusion, I beg to advise that in all possibility your auditors could take my report, and in much less time than I could, get from the Tax Commission office a complete history of each case mentioned in my report and could do this without any difficulty whatsoever.

Pending more definite information from you as to whether or not my conclusions meet with your wishes as a committee, I trust that you will extend the time within which I would otherwise be required to make my report.

Awaiting your prompt reply, I am,
Yours very truly,
RUSH H. KNOX,
Attorney General

The law governing secrecy says:

Section 32. Except in accordance with proper judicial order, or as otherwise provided by law, it shall be unlawful for the members of the commission, any deputy, agent, clerk, or other officer, or employe, to divulge or make in any manner the value of any estate or any particulars set forth or disclosed in any report or return required under this act. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the publication of statistics, so classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports or returns and the items thereof, or the inspection by the attorney general or other legal representatives of the state, of the report or return of any taxpayer who shall bring action to set aside or review the tax based thereon, or against whom an action or proceeding has been instituted to recover any tax or penalty imposed by this act. Reports and returns shall be preserved for three years and thereafter until the commissioner orders them to be destroyed.

(2). Any persons violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court, and if the offender be an officer or employe of the state he shall be dismissed from office and be incapable of holding any public office in this state for a period of five years thereafter.

Section 40 of chapter 132, Laws of 1924, substitutes the words "estate" and "inheritance," where "income" is used in the above.

MAKERS OF OVERALLS HERE LAST SATURDAY

Heads of Plant, Almost Certain to Come to Grenada, Bring Attorney to City for Conference with Local Business Men—Terms Agreed Upon and Signed Contract Expected Today. Most of Stock Has Been Subscribed.

Sentinel readers will recall that several weeks ago an article appeared in this paper saying that an overall factory seemed assured for Grenada. In next week's Sentinel, it may be predicted now that an article will appear saying definitely that the factory is coming.

The heads of the concern, together with their lawyer, were in Grenada last Saturday conferring with local business men, making final arrangements and agreeing upon terms under which they would begin operations here. The meeting was a most amicable one in every way and verbal terms, to be supplemented by a written contract, were agreed to. The contract was drawn up and forwarded to the company's head office and should be returned to Grenada today duly signed.

Local business men are to subscribe to $25,000 of preferred stock in the enterprise, most of which has been taken, and have agreed to advance the money to repair and remodel the building to be used, the potato house on North Main Street, just south of the Y. & M. V. right of way. The manufacturers agreed to post $5,000 as a guarantee of good faith. Full details will be published in the next issue of this paper.

Should this factory come to Grenada it will mean that a splendid start has been made toward securing other industries. Representatives of another industry are expected to visit Grenada in the very near future seeking a location in the south.

MISS ETHEL THOMAS TAKES HER OWN LIFE

Miss Ethel Thomas, about thirty years old, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Thomas, a prominent family of near Elliott, died at the home of her brother, Shed Thomas, about one mile east of Elliott, last Saturday afternoon as a result of a bullet fired from a thirty-two caliber pistol with her own hands. The family had only a short while before driven away from home and did not expect to be long away when they were called and informed of what had happened. Miss Thomas was not in good health, having only a few weeks ago returned from a sanitarium where she had been under treatment. Despondency and ill health are supposed to have prompted self-destruction.

When she entered her teens, she was an exceedingly bright and beautiful child and her parents naturally joyed in what they hoped her life would attain, but fate decreed otherwise. Months of illness had not prepared them for the shock that her demise caused, and their hearts bleed over her death. Besides her parents she is survived by several brothers and sisters besides other relatives. The Sentinel extends sympathy to the bereft.

MRS. W. T. McGEHEE CRITICALLY ILL

The Sentinel regrets to chronicle the news that comes from the bedside of Mrs. W. T. McGeehee at Greenville (formerly Miss Sallie Key Brown) that she is critically ill. She has been confined to her bed for many weeks. Her good mother Mrs. Ione Brown, has been with her for more than two months.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, BORN 197 YEARS AGO.

Today, February 22, is the one-hundred and ninety-seventh anniversary of the birthday of George Washington. There have been so many thousand speeches made about George Washington and so many millions of lines written about him, that one finds it difficult to say anything new.

To say that he was a great man none will dispute. To assert that he was patriotic, brave, true, far-seeing and full of hope for his country, none will gainsay. He set this government upon its feet. He blazed a path which succeeding men have largely followed. He entered an unexplored wilderness of government, but he conquered what obstructed his path and lighted the dark places with lamps of common sense, sound business, love of home and of country.

When others faltered during the Revolutionary War and when further prosecution of the war seemed impossible, Washington remained steadfast and stayed with his army. At Valley Forge was perhaps his darkest hour; it was there that he became almost ready to give up because of lack of proper support back home and because of the failure of the continental congress, but out of the darkness and the gloom of the hour, came the brightest days of the American Army. It was Washington who first felt every shaft of criticism, it was he who knew that the Tories would have delighted in his downfall and in the failure of the colonies to dissolve the bonds that bound them to the mother country.

Washington was the Gibraltar of the American Army. He was the captain and the acknowledged leader in statecraft in laying the foundations of this government.

The story of his hatchet and the cherry tree many have been a myth, but if so there could not have been one that has served a better purpose and that has been so greatly worth while to the youth of the land. "Father, I cannot tell a lie". What a wonderful statement! Lying has done more to undermine men, to destroy homes, to make a breach in society and to dynamite the highest and the best in government than any other dozen sins. It is one of the meanest and the most unnecessary sins named in the decalogue. What would it have been in America had not those inspired words of this Virginia boy been broadcast to the world.

It is good to look back at what the great men of this country did. It is good to reflect on what they said and to think over how they lived.

Washington's life and influence are still controlling factors in this great country, and especially are the words spoken in his farewell address, "avoid entangling alliances" with foreign countries bred in the bones of the American people. He was right in what he said then. It is mighty fine doctrine today.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS FINE FOR FIRST OFFENSE.

A bill before the United States senate last week providing for a fine of ten thousand dollars for the first offense against prohibition brought forth some oratory that recalled the days of Webster, Clay, Calhoun, Prentiss, and Lamar. The discussion by most senators was serious and upon high ground. The trend of the ablest speeches was that too heavy penalties make convictions doubtful.

The ablest speech delivered against the proposition was that of Senator Reed of Missouri. Reed is one of the great men of the senate. What he says on any subject is always seriously said and displays a courage and a statesmanship worthy of the occasion. He has a wonderful mind. He has a storehouse of knowledge and is one of the great orators as well as debaters of the senate. In attacking the proposed ten thousand dollar fine proposition, Senator Reed said that if senators and congressmen who make "dry" speeches and who drink whenever they can would act as they talk and vote, there would be very little trouble in enforcing the prohibition law. He also said that at the Kansas City Republican convention last summer and at the Democratic convention at Houston, liquor flowed almost as freely as water, and that some of the loudest champions of prohibition frequently had their stomachs full of whiskey so as to fire their oratory.

The Senator said that there were senators in the chamber whose lips were often wet with whiskey who never failed to champion the cause of the "drys", and he stated that he thought it was about time names were being called.

The bill was passed. Unquestionably the prohibition law is destined to remain one of the leading questions before the American people for a long while, but this is evident, and that is, whatever changes or modifications are made in the law will be made by sincere-minded prohibitionists. Nevertheless Senator Reed said many great things and it is fortunate that somebody is brave enough to puncture the hides of those officials who carry whiskey on one shoulder and water on the other.

It would go a long way towards blocking the still runner and the bootlegger to deprive him of his citizenship when convicted.

Our good friend, Wilmer Kennedy, editor and owner of the Batesville Panolian, had the good fortune to see his paper pass its forty-third mile post, we believe it was, only recently. We congratulate Kennedy. He is all the time on the job and his paper stands for the right in public matters and for what is best for his community. The Panolian is a valuable asset to Panola County. Kennedy is a worth while man to his town, too.

The U. S. Senate passed a bill Tuesday offered by Senator Jones of the state of Washington by a vote of 65 to 18 which authorizes the imposition of a fine of ten thousand dollars for the first offense in violating the prohibition law.

IT DOES NOT PAY TO STEAL EVEN BIG AMOUNTS

Recent court trials and sentences prompt in different parts of the country a repetition of the old and oftrepeated statement, "It don't pay to steal a small amount". No, nor does it pay to steal a large amount.

Within the space of the last few years, the public has seen cabinet officers steal either directly or indirectly money up into the hundreds of thousands and go scotfree. Only a few months ago the treasurer of the Southern Baptist Mission Board stole $981,000, and as a penalty for his theft and his betrayal of a great church, he was sentenced to a term of not more than seven and not less than five years in the penitentiary. The records of similar sentences show that he will probably not serve longer than five years. Within the past few months, the treasurer of the state of Ohio was convicted of embezzlement of state funds. Keyes, a prosecuting attorney in Los Angeles, who had sent his hundreds to prison, is now behind prison bars for having accepted bribe money from a big oil concern, and other similar charges are still pending against him. In our own state of Mississippi a banker who confessed to taking $28,000 of the funds of his bank, was pardoned after having served only one year of his sentence. Yet most of us know of many poor white men and lots of helpless negroes who have within the same period been sent to prison for a term of years, ranging from 3 to 10, for stealing amounts far under five hundred dollars. Yes, if a man is lost to shame and honor and cares nothing for protecting the name of his father and mother and is willing to sell his very soul for money, it pays him, if he determines to go into the business of stealing, to steal big amounts.

But while reflecting on such things and the light sentences for big stealages and the heavy sentences for small stealages, what about the state of the public mind and the thought of us, who either by silence or otherwise, permit or tolerate such discriminations in sentences designed to protect society?

YES, THE FUTURES DEALING BILL WAS DEFEATED.

Yes, the bill offered in the United States Senate by Senator Carraway of Arkansas to prohibit the dealing in "futures", was defeated. We said it would be. All the power of the organized speculators was against it. It would have killed their business.

We can appreciate that one might be in doubt as to what to do with a measure of that kind. We can understand that even the best friends of the farmers might fear to risk a trial of such a law. But it seems to us that one thing, and one alone should be enough to persuade a lawmaker to be willing to give it a test, and that is that the farmer, and particularly the cotton farmer, could not be hurt by a law that would stop the man who never makes a boll of cotton and who has naught to do with producing a bale of cotton, from speculating, or gambling if you please, in cotton. The farmer is down, he may die of the disease that afflicts him. but if the remedy should kill him, we can see that he could have but little choice.

With 85 per cent of the farms of the country under mortgage and with the speculators selling 200,000,000 bales of cotton on the boards while only fifteen million are produced, a non-compus mentis, it seems to us, could see that under the present methods the farmer is doomed to disaster and the bankrupt courts.

It is generally agreed that one of the great ills of the farmer is the method and system of marketing his products. We have been trying allowing others to gamble on what the farmer makes, why not try it awhile with the gambler horned off?

WHAT IT COSTS TO KEEP A BULL.

On the average, a bull will consume 2½ tons of hay, 3 tons of silage, and 1300 lbs. of grain in a year. At $15.00 a ton for hay, $5.00 a ton for silage, and $40.00 a ton for grain, this would bring the cost of feed to $78.00. In addition, there would be the shelter of the bull which might be charged at $10.00 a year and on the average the care of a bull in the usual manner would take some 40 hours of labor. These two items would bring the total cost to approximately $100.00 a year. This is purely an estimate and the amount of the different kinds of feed fed would vary according to those available and the type of handling to which the bull is subjected. We would estimate, however, that $100.00 would be adequate compensation for the feeding and care of a bull. It is possible, of course, that in this case it may take more time either in transporting the bull or attending to those who bring their cows for service.—Hoard's Dairyman.

ROSS COLLINS CORRECT

Hon. Ross Collins said in a speech in the lower house of congress the other day in opposition to that part of the legislative appropriation bill providing for horses for the cavalry that horses in the army are worthless. "Procurement planning is a scheme to add more officers to the army now top heavy with them". Mr. Collins, in our judgment, is right. He was arguing that the areoplane and automobile and trucks had made cavalry useless. As to the top heavy officers, the public recalls that a retired Admiral of the Navy some months ago wrote an article in which he stated that too many naval officers were occupying swivelled chairs in handsome offices at Washington. That Admiral was deprived of the important assignment he was then occupying. Useless officers are one of the items that runs expenses of government high.

WANT CAR TAGS ON INSTALLMENTS.

There is official report that many persons are applying for motor-car licenses, tags and titles who have not money enough to pay the small sum charged. Apparently there are not a few who imagine that if they can once possess a car their joy will be complete and costs at an end.—Greenwood Commonwealth.

Mississippi is "hipped". She is offering more bonds but the chances are that the speculators of Wall Street will make it impossible to sell the bonds except at a high rate of interest. The speculators are gobbling all the idle money of the country. Mississippi will be passing her hat around if the present gait is kept.

Economy is the parent of integrity, of liberty and ease, and the beauteous sister of temperance, of cheerfulness and health.—Dr. Johnson.

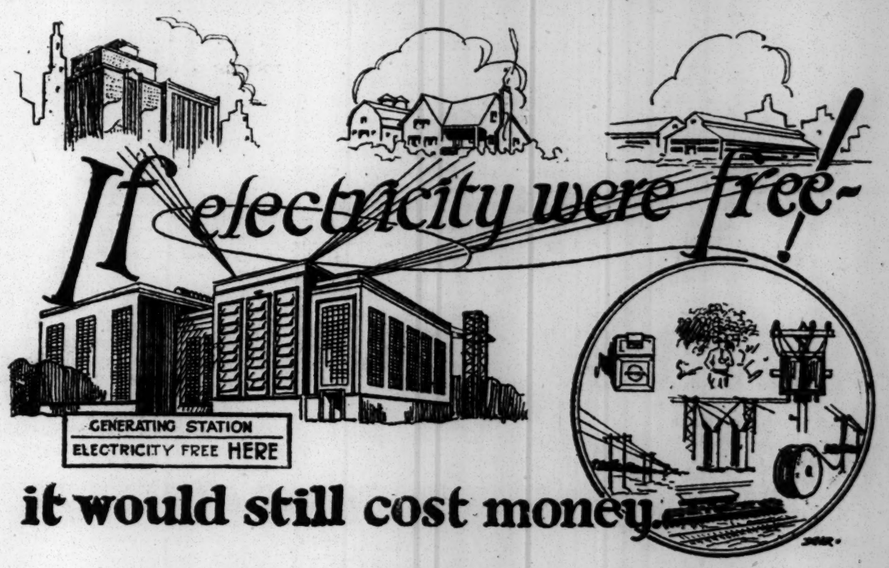
QUALITY AT LOW COST



it would still cost money.

Suppose it were possible to manufacture electricity without cost, would it make very much difference in your electric light bills?

No — nor in the company's profits either, for the reason that the cost of electricity lies not so much in its manufacture, as in its delivery.

Electric light and power companies do much more than merely care for the day-by-day demands of their customers. The modern electric utility is run on plans made years in advance. Through improvements in facilities and lower rates, the consumer today receives fourteen times as much light for a dollar as he did 30 years ago.

Were it possible for the consumer to buy electricity by the yard and take it home under his arm, then electricity would be available at a small fraction of its present cost.

But while chain stores for electricity are not practical, the electric light and power companies have devised chain systems of distribution which greatly reduce operating expenses.

These chain systems might be likened to the interconnection of great railway systems, which permit one road to use the lines and equipment of another in given territories, without the necessiy of erecting and maintaining facilities of their own.

As a result of the adoption of a similar plan by the electric light and power companies, the cost of electricity to the consumer has steadily declined notwithstanding the fact that the cost of the raw materials entering into its production has steadily increased.

COTTON CHAMPION

Fertilized his winning crop with Chilean Nitrate of Soda

INVARIABLY when the state cotton champion is named by the authorities, he proves a liberal user of Chilean Nitrate of Soda.

Do you think this "just happens" every year? There is no "just happens" about it. He makes his record crop because he uses this wonderful nitrogen fertilizer. History proves it . . . 1928 . . . '27 . . . '26 . . . '25 . . . year after year Chilean Nitrate wins!

Hoover Determined to Reorganize

It is believed by those close to Mr. Hoover that, before his term is over, one or more new Cabinet officers may be added, and that dozens of un-coordinated and over-lapping functions will be brought together for the first time. He has stated that the guiding policy for such administrative re-organization would be to group all sections with similar functions under single leadership. He believes enough fluidity should be left to allow the President to assign new functions, as he sees fit.

Two of the major alterations which Mr. Hoover has urged are the formation of an aviation bureau and the grouping of all construction activities of the Government into a public works section which, he says, would permit seasonal work on a national scale to prevent unemployment cycles. He is reported to see three major benefits to be derived from such re-organization; the saving of millions of dollars by simplifying activities; the greater saving in time and trouble to the industries affected by such overlapping and greater efficiency to be gained by the Chief Executive and the Cabinet.

The Roman Question

In 1870 the Italian parliament passed the Law of Guaranties acknowledging the Pope as a sovereign and providing for cash indemnifications for territory seized by Italian troops. While the law of Italy was recognized throughout the nation it was suspended with respect to the Vatican grounds. The measure was never accepted by the Holy See, and the question has had its effect on international relations.

Sunday, February 10, the Papal Secretary of State and Premier Mussolini signed a new treaty which extends the rule of the Pope. The treaty admits him to be the spiritual ruler of all Italy and the law of the church the law of Italy. Thus the super-modern state which Mussolini has created with its syndicates and its emphasis on industry and efficiency also accepts a situation which has not been paralleled for a thousand years. It remains to be seen whether, as a result of his move all phases of civil law such as that having to do with marriage, will be scrapped or whether civil and canon law will be permitted to exist side by side and of equal validity.

To this date the mechanical man is merely a curiosity. There are now too many of his kind occupying various positions in life.

Of the 10,000 millions tons of iron in sight in this country, more than half is in the Mississippi Valley.

Life is made up of trials, with an occasional conviction.

Germany Protests

Mr. Howard Siepen, special investigator and writer for the Christian Science Monitor, says that 80 per cent of the German people emphatically reject the assertion of Germany's complete guilt for the war. Records published during the last 10 years have strengthened this attitude. They believe they were being attacked from all sides; admit the Kaiser sometimes acted unwisely, that military leaders sometimes made blunders, and that German armies committed certain severe deeds. But they also contend that others did the same, that "war is war", and such things will always occur, and are now occurring. They point to the bombing of cities in the Rhinelands and the blockade of foodstuffs which caused the deaths of millions of innocent women and children by slow starvation. They were defeated and are willing to pay according to their ability, but object to being enslaved for two or three generations, and feel that they are entitled to some of that guarantee of protection that their neighbors insist on.

Permanent Waves

In millions of suburban and farm homes the radio is virtually turned on in the morning and not dismissed until bedtime. Millions of housewives go through the tasks of a long day against a background of voices in the air. It is a permanent wave that dispels the loneliness of farm life. In between the messages of wisdom and entertainment, music is the greatest factor. It is hoped that some day the quality will equal the quantity—but just at present a large portion of it is so silly that one wonders that it be allowed time on the limited waves.

Towns Consolidated

Following a statement from the Bureau of Education that 1,000 one-teacher schools have disappeared every year during the past ten years, the Postoffice department says that 1393 rural mail routes have been discontinued on account of consolidations since 1925 at an annual saving of $1,544,606. The 44,288 routes in operation at the close of the fiscal year covered 1,269,613 miles, and were serving 7,141,792 families, or about 24,282,092 individuals.

Every man has a black and white side of life.

Conflict of state laws, or rather non-recognition of laws of adjoining states, is responsible for the future of Nebraska's requirement of ten days' notice before the marriage ceremony. Young people skip over into Kansas where the law is not enforced and where every encouragement is offered—all that a few dollars may be gained.

The backbone of American business activities with its resultant prosperity in certain directions during the last few years, has been basically the automobile industry. Iron and steel have moved down from first to second place in the last decade, while chemicals hold third place, and petroleum holds fourth place.

Expert Opinion On Stock Values

Discussing the recent break in stock values, and the fact that earnings have not materially altered, Mr. John F. Sinclair, a recognized Wall Street authority, writing for the North American Newspaper Alliance, says that stocks have been selling at from 10 to 40 times their earning values. It is only during the last four years that any well-seasoned stock, earning $10, might be valued at $100, but many good stocks could be bought for less.

It is very clear that the pur-

"HAIR-TRIGGER" CONTROL
An AVERY PLUS Feature

An Avery Plus Feature is an extra feature—an added improvement created by Avery experts to make a better implement, to save time and labor in farm work.

"Hair-trigger" Control, for example, is an Avery Plus Feature added to the beautiful simplicity of design and staunch construction of the famous Avery Shawnee Jr. Planter. It means absolute and instant control of planting depth while planter is in motion. A simple pressure of the triggers on the handles does it. The same simple motion lifts the opener clear of the ground and throws the planting mechanism out of gear at the end of a row. This one feature definitely improves both the quality and quantity of work done and reduces the cost.

Avery Plus Features Save You Time and Money

Every Avery implement has its Plus Features—improvements conceived and perfected entirely as a result of the Avery system of thinking, planning and building. The moderate price of an Avery implement includes these Plus Features and the time and money saving service they make possible.

Robinson Crusoe Advertised!

Robinson Crusoe was stranded—and sick of it! Only his man Friday and a goat and a parrot for companionship! He wanted to get off the island, and to do this, he knew he must communicate with people who might pass, afar off, in ships. So he did what any man does who wants to reach people—He advertised!

True, he had only a ragged shirt with which to do his advertising, but he stuck it on a pole, secured the pole in the ground and waited—for days! Didn't get discouraged at the first days of failure, you see. No good advertiser does!

And finally—he got results!

If Robinson Crusoe, with one old shirt, could accomplish his purpose, could reach the folks he sought, what do you think you could do with the infinite advertising possibilities offered you?

Artistic type at your disposal—skillful printers to set it into what ever message you choose—and the folks you want to reach all near at hand!

Doesn't it stand to reason you'd get results, too?

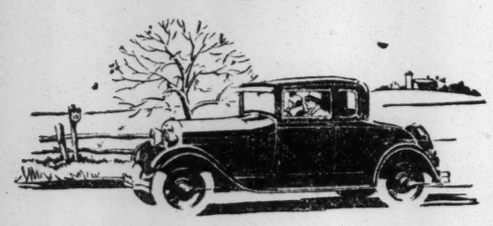
Fuel system of the new Ford has been designed for reliability and long service



THE practical value of Ford simplicity of design is especially apparent in the fuel system.

The gasoline tank is built integral with the cowl and is unusually sturdy because it is made of heavy sheet steel, terne plated to prevent rust or corrosion. An additional factor of strength is the fact that it is composed of only two pieces, instead of three or four, and is electrically welded—not soldered.

Because of the location of the tank, the entire flow of gasoline is an even, natural flow—following the natural law of gravity. This is the simplest and most direct way of supplying gasoline to the carburetor without variations in pressure. The gasoline feed pipe of the new Ford is only 18 inches long and is easily accessible all the way.

The gasoline passes from the tank to the carburetor through a filter or sediment bulb mounted on the steel dash which separates the gasoline tank from the engine.

The carburetor is specially designed and has been built to deliver many thousands of miles of good service.

Since all adjustments are fixed except the needle valve and idler, there is practically nothing to get out of order.

The choke rod on the dash acts as a primer and also as a regulator of your gasoline mixture. The new hot spot manifold insures complete vaporization of the gasoline before it enters the combustion chamber of the engine.

As a matter of fact, the fuel system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little service attention.

The filter or sediment bulb should be cleaned at regular intervals and the carburetor screen removed and washed in gasoline. Occasionally the drain plug at the bottom of the carburetor should be removed and the carburetor drained for a few seconds.

Have your Ford dealer look after these important little details for you when you have the car oiled and greased. A thorough, periodic checking-up costs little, but it has a great deal to do with long life and continuously good performance.

Mrs. Thomas Rose, Jr., entertained on last Tuesday afternoon with a delightful party, celebrating the eighth birthday of her son, Master Thomas Rose, III.

After the lovely gifts were opened and admired, the children enjoyed some charming games and contests.

The lucky ones in the contest were: Magdalene Theisman, receiving a dainty box of candy and a story book; Jessie Lowe Henderson, a box of candy; and Thomas, III, a story book.

In the dining room the children were served with pink ice cream and a slice from the beautiful birthday cake which was decorated with eight pretty candles.

The children then returned to the living room where each was given a fishing line and told to fish in the lucky spot. Each hook brought up a dainty little basket containing a pleasing surprise for the opener.

Those who enjoyed this delightful party were: Dorothy Evelyn Parks, Nina May Bailey, Magdalene Theisman, Louise Walker, Mary Douglas Hall, Ruby Weir, Montel Clogston, Jessie Lowe Henderson, E. H. Parks, John Rodgers Roberts, Perry Jones, Jr., Lynn and Thomas Rose.

HOWARD GIVEN SUSPENSION

Parchman, Miss., Feb. 14.—Sandy Allred, 21, sentenced from Webster County to serve three years in the penitentiary, died this morning from gunshot wounds inflicted Tuesday when he made an attempt to escape after threatening Assistant Sergeant W. E. Savage. Allred was shot by Trusty J. J. Howard, who today was granted a suspension as a reward for his action.

According to reports made to Prison Supt. Jim Williamson, Allred refused to do some work Savage ordered him to do, and started to attack the sergeant with a singletree. He was halted by Trusty Howard, and when he made an attempt to escape was shot by the trusty.

Superintendent Williamson tonight called Howard's act the most courageous act performed by a convict this year and it was largely through his recommendation that Howard was granted the suspension of sentence today by Governor Bilbo. Allred escaped from the penitentiary last year and was recaptured after he had been out for several months.

Howard was sentenced at the January, 1928 term of the Grenada county circuit court to 10 years on the charge of arson.

GRAND OPERA TICKETS GOING LIKE WILDFIRE

The following telegram, received by The Sentinel, Tuesday morning from the Jackson Grand Opera Association which is sponsoring the opera season in the capital city next Monday and Tuesday, shows that indications are that the performances will prove a success from every standpoint. The entire state is joining with Jackson in supporting the opera and many from Grenada have purchased tickets.

The telegram follows:

"Your capitol city will be host to all Mississippians for Grand Opera next Monday and Tuesday when Norma with Rosa Raisa and Thais with Mary Garden will be presented at the auditorium by the three hundred artists of the Chicago Civic Opera Company. Tickets going like wildfire".

20th Century Meets.

Mrs. W. B. Waterman and Mrs. D. N. McCleery were joint hostesses to the Twentieth Century Club which met at the home of Mrs. Waterman Tuesday afternoon. Decorations and refreshments carried out the Washington birthday motif and a delicious salad course was served at the close of a most interesting program.

The topic for the afternoon was "The Value of Physical Training for the Youth of Today".

Each member answered to roll call with a health quotation. Prof. John Rundle gave a most helpful address on the "Value of Athletics for the Youth of Today". Misses Lula Mae Provine and Mary Ann Bradshaw gave delightful readings.

There were nineteen present with the following specially invited guests: Miss Corinne Laney, Mrs. J. R. Countiss, Mrs. O. F. Lawrence, Mr. John Rundle, Misses Lula Mae Provine and Mary Ann Bradshaw.

From the Files of THE GRENADA SENTINEL

Mr. Paul Burt, representing the Day & Bailey Grocer Company of Memphis, was in Grenada Thursday. He is a live, progressive and popular young gentleman, and we predict for him in his new field of business an abundant success.

Mr. Rice Pressgrove, of the popular firm of Guy & Pressgrove, spent last week in St. Louis, purchasing a large stock of spring goods. He was assisted in the millinery line by Miss Crowe, who is an expert in her line.

Mr. R. F. Hubert and Miss Leona Abbott, were married in Greenwood, February 23. Both the contracting parties are residents of Grenada. The bride is a pretty and charming young lady, while the groom is a genial and industrous young gentleman.

Mr. L. A. Hargreaves and Miss Agnes Harker were married in Memphis on February 21. The groom recently moved here, and is the plumber for the Grenada Plumbing Company. The bride is an intelligent and attractive young lady. They are boarding at Mrs. J. R. Garner's. We extend to them our best wishes.

The firm of Penn & Yeager in the livery stable business has been dissolved, by Mr. Penn purchasing the interest of Mr. Yeager, as will be seen elsewhere. Mr. Penn will continue the business in a progressive up to date manner. He will have fine turnouts, first class horses, etc. He understands the livery business, and is a genial and popular gentleman.

Mr. C. L. Lomax, a prominent lawyer and popular citizen of Greenwood, was in Grenada on Monday strictly on business, but not of a legal character.

CHRISTIAN GROWTH

LESSON TEXT—John 1:40-42; Matt. 16:15-18; John 21:15-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Growing Like Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Growing Like Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Growing Up—To What?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conditions of Christian Growth.

I. Following Jesus (John 1:40).

As a result of the testimony of John the Baptist, that Jesus was the Lamb of God (v. 36), Andrew followed Jesus. The proof that he really believed is that he followed Christ. This is the first essential in the Christian life.

II. Leading Others to Christ. (v. 41).

As soon as Andrew had found and became acquainted with Christ, he brought his brother Peter to Christ. Christian growth can only be truly realized in the giving of oneself to the winning of souls. The one who has received the gospel, the good news, cannot help but proclaim it.

III. Confessing Jesus as the Messiah, the Son of God (Matt. 16:15-18).

The disciples had been with the Lord for several years. They had heard His wonderful words and seen His mighty works. Various opinions were extant about Him. It was now necessary for them to have a definite conception of Him. Examination came after the period of school life. As the Master Teacher, Jesus knew what it meant to the disciples to have a right conception of Himself. He knew the trying ordeal through which they would be called upon to pass as the time of His crucifixion drew near. Only as they perceived His deity would they be strong in the hour of trial. In answer to Jesus' pointed, personal question, Peter confessed to the absolute deity and Messiahship of Jesus. This conception of Christ is essential to salvation (John 20:31).

No one lacking it will ever be interested in the winning of souls. Besides, the denial of His deity is the supreme lie (1 John 2:22).

1. What Peter confessed (v. 16).

"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." It therefore involved His Messiahship and deity. This is the burning question of today. Those who have the right conception of Christ's person and mission have no trouble in the realm of science, philosophy or ethics.

2. Christ's commendation (v. 17).

He pronounced him blessed. The evidence that Peter was blessed was that he was in spiritual touch with the heavenly Father. His conception of Christ was not revealed by flesh and blood.

3. Peter's blessing (v. 18).

Christ declared that he should become a foundation stone in His church. Christ Himself is the chief cornerstone on which the church is built. Christ's person and Messiahship were confessed by Peter, and on this rock is laid the foundation of apostles and prophets. (Eph. 2:20). All believers are living stones of this house (I Peter 2:5).

IV. Peter's Restoration (John 21:15-19).

Peter grievously sinned in denying the Lord, but he made confession, shedding bitter tears over his sin and folly. The Lord tenderly dealt with His erring disciple and restored him. In his restoration Jesus brought to Peter's mind the essential qualification of his ministry. Love is the pre-eminent gift for Christian service. To impress upon his mind this fact He three times asked the question, "Lovest thou Me?" He not only asked the question three times to show the supreme qualification for service to Him, but to show that there are three classes of persons demanding His service, and that these classes need special care as well as food adapted to their state.

1. Those beginning the Christian life, babes in Christ, "Feed my lambs." The word "feed" means more than instruction. It applies to the surroundings, influences and examples.

2. The mature ones. "Feed my sheep."

This seems to mean "shepherd my sheep." The mature class of believers not only need food, but discipline. They need correction and guidance.

3. The aged Christians. "Feed my sheep."

The word "feed" here is much the same as in the first case. This is a service greatly needed today. In many places the old people are greatly neglected. All provision is made for the young people. Love is the supreme need in service to the old folks.

Duck Hill, was a guest of Mrs. Carrie Goodwin Thursday.

Hon. W. C. McLean is spending a brief season on his large orange farm in Florida, as well as taking a needed rest.

Dr. J. S. Sharp, one of our leading physicians, was called to Senatobia yesterday on business.

Mr. San Young, popular and affable young gentleman, is visiting relatives in Grenada.

Messrs. C. B. Bolton and H. G. Leonard spent Wednesday in Memphis.

Mr. Jesse Hardy has sold his residence to Mr. John D. McLemore of Greenwood, who will move here with his family next week. He is a planter and traveling salesman, whose friends are numerous. Grenada will extend to him and his excellent family a most cordial welcome.

Mr. Jos. Newburger was in New York and other cities this week.

Our friend, Mr. Max Ginsburger, was in Canton and Jackson this week.

In far-away Siam, where the religion of Buddha reigns supreme, the white elephant is considered sacred. Kings and beggars alike worship this beast, an animal created to be a servant of man. They bow down before it—they protect it from the flies and gnats from which they themselves suffer—they drudge their lives out to support it in idleness.

It is a far cry from the bamboo shack in the "Land of the White Elephant" to the modern home in the "Land of the Free" but a similar practice prevails in both. For thousands of Americans devote all their energy and thoughts to saving money and then let their dollars lie idle. They toil ceaselessly themselves and then allow their servants (the dollars they have earned) to loaf instead of making them work.

OLD TIMER MAKES A VISIT TO GRENADA TO DO TRADING

UNCLE HEZ HANKINS WRITES A VERY INTERESTING LETTER TO PAPER

Good Farmer Likes This Progressive City and Its Live Merchants and Praises It as a Grain and Produce Market

Deer Eddyter:—

Be gosh, I didn't know Grenada wuz sich a bizzy little town, but I can tell you she's all right and a plum good un.

Me and Liza and the kids had been working hard all winter and got together a bunch of country produce and sum cotton what we had for to sell. So Liza sed to me one nite as how we'd ought to as well sell the things right now and git'em of'er our mind.

We had been readin all long 'bout the markets and from what we could gether by words of mouth and thru the local paper we decided that Grenada wuz bout the best market in reach and Liza decided—she allus does the decidin for the family caze she's decidedly the better half—as how I'd better hitch up ole beck and jude to us folks' horse less kerridges and drive a few lodes or rather pull few lodes—oh no I mean to drive the mules and let them pull a few loads ov produce and cotton to Grenada and sell at once.

Wall we had to pass through 1 or 2 other towns an all them thar store merchants run out an tried to stop Beck and Jude right thar so we'd stop in that air town, but we just axed the price of cotton and produce an come on.

An so we driv on again till we driv up to Grenada.

I was feeling pretty good over them prices I got for my cotton and produce and as I nachly felt like buyin' somethin' in Grenada I went 'rond to Barwick's Store. Bein' as how Liza always wants to have biscuits for breakfast, and a little short sweeting for the coffee, I bought a sack of their famous Dainty flour which they sell. I took some of their good Richelieu canned goods, and some of their honest-to-goodness ole time Richelieu coffee, very best that is ground. This an' a dollar's worth of sugar and a mighty big one it was, got me kinda started and when I wound up I had to give Mr. Barwick $20 to square off, and I saved enough to buy me a new hat.

This kinder got me broke into buyin and so I struck out for a good place to shed my ole rusty suit, cause Liza had done tole me she wouldn't go to meetin with me nary nuther Sunday without I bought me a new suit of store clothes. The Leader was the very place and I couldn't have been better pleased if I'd asent to Memphis or Chicago for 'em. They are knowed as the Keller-Heumann-Thompson clothes guaranteed all sheep's wool and to wear to the entire satisfaction of the customer. They look swell and fit a feller natchel and easy like and make him look like a city drummer right out of a band box. Mr. Trusty and Joe Williams and Leo Martin also sells a lotta them Nunn-Bush shoes and gents' furnishins, too.

Liza has been gruntin awful with the roomatiz and I knowed at the Corner Drug Store they knowed exactly what would put her back in fine shape. Well whilest they was awrappin 'em up, I spied one of them little fine-toothed things we have to use on the chillun's top-nots now and then, so I taken it along too. The Corner Drug Store is shore full to the brim with all kines of good smellin artickles for the women folks, Kodaks and films and pens and tablets and ink and pencils—and plenty of physics to fill any kine of doctor's prescription, and Will Hill and Jay Gore knows how cause they're regular registered pharmacists.

Liza has been dead set on a ortmobile for sum time and she had heerd a lot about them Chevrolet cars, what fine cars for country roads and sich, and in compliance to her orders I went round to the Moss Chevrolet Company the authorized dealers for Chevrolet cars an me an Sim looked 'em over. They'se toorin cars and sedans and coopays and gadabouts, all swell lookers and run like shore nough ortmobiles and the prices pears like pow'ful low for sich good cars. Mr. Moss was mity nice bout showin us round and me an him got together on a toorin outfit pervidin Liza likes it when she comes to town an sees it. And I kno I'll git rail ortymobile service if I by my car from Moss Chevrolet Co.

One of my nabors ast me to go by the 111 Service Station for 1 of them good Seiberling rubber tires an tubes for his flivver. Saw a lot of things thare I didn't kno the names of—folks said they's called fan belts an spot-lites an all kines taps an bolts on Fords. Miss Rollins is a live wire for business and this service station is one of the most enterprisin places in town. Sides sellin all kines auto axessories they also sells good Texaco gasoline and Waverly oils, an their prices are alers most reesonable, too. Them folks has got a up to date fillin station drivein style with ladies rest room an everthing.

All uv sudden I felt rele shamuv myself puttin on airs in a new suite and hadn't bot Liza nuthin to ware, so I went round to Townes-Kimbrough Co. store at Duncan old stand where I knowed a swell lot uv ladies redy to wear wuz kept all the time an picked out a purty navy blue coat an a swell dress for Liza. Then I bethought myself uv a silk sweater what Sis, our gal, she needed one orful bad an warn't no trouble to find a swell looker what pleased the gal. The Townes-Kimbrough Company is putting young blood into the business and is one of the biggest stores in this part of the country and carries a general line uv everything in ladies ready-to-wear and ladies hats and fancy sweaters an other ladies furnishins, as well as general dry goods at low prices.

SKEERED! I reckon I wuz. The ole barn caught on fire a little while back and we come mity nigh gittin burned out, lock, stock an' barrel. And me in debt an 'thout any fire insurance. Ain't never goin' to be thet way agin tho, cause I went round and had Hoffa & Moody—they insures agin everything but the hereafter—git me a policy for $3,000 on our house and furniture, sose we won't be worrying so much about them debts in case we wuz to git burned out. Hoffa & Moody rites all kinds uv insurance—fire, tornado, hail, ortermobile, axidents an' libility—an they represents sum of the biggest and oldest companies in the world. "Prompt and efficient service" is their motto, too.

Well we knowed that if we bilt that spare room we wud need sum furnitur to go in it. Liza wanted one of thim pritty sofys and a cuppla rockin chairs so we sauntered down to Sharp Furniture Co. because we knew this store sells better furnitur. Liza seen jist the sofy she wanted and we were sirprised it was so low in price. We bot it and 2 nice rockers and while we were lodin it on the waggin, we seen a hansum buro with a gret big mirror that we jist had to get. Mr. Sharp treted us so nice that we sho ar goin back to see him agin. He played sum good musick for us on one of them Victrolas and it was so good we cud close our eyes and think we were in one of the big city opry houses.

Liza is kinder sprucy like—goes to meetin mighty rigged up sometimes and jest sposen now I'd forgot to go by The Vogue for that new head gear I promised her. You married fellers kno bout what woulda happened. I jist tole Mrs. Mitchell what style of beauty the ole woman was and she knowed exactly what kind of sky piece to fix up. Purty? Huh, it was purty enough for the hifalutinest gal in all our diggens and I was natchelly scared to ask the price, but shucks it warn't nothin to fuss bout, cause the prices in that thare store are just as agreeable as the hats are to look at. And the ole lady is still kissin me for to show me how well she's pleased.

By Jiggers! I cum nigh as peas forgettin' two or three pairs uv ole shoes that wuz to be half soled fur the kids. And I'm telling you them there shoes wuz jest about as good as new when the Grenada Shoe Hospital got thru with them. They're got a lot of machinery fer fixing shoes and don't use nuthing but the best grade of leather, neither. Mr. Barranco's prices are most reasonable too, an you can bet I saved a lot of kale by having theme ole shoes fixed up an not throwin 'em away. I'm glad I found at air place an I guess I will visit the Grenada Shoe Hospital purty often.

I came might near forgetting to buy some of that good Wheeling Zinc-coated fencing and a Keen Cutter Axe. what we need awful bad but it came to me mighty sudden when I started past. Robert's Hardware Store. On the inside I found many good things I needed that I didn't hardly know when to stop buyin'. There was trace chains, plow lines, clevices and everything in mule jewelry that a fellow might need an I jes blowed myself for ole Beck and their cheap prices didn't near break me either. Mr. Roberts is a mighty clever fellow, and carries a complete line of chinaware and glassware and graniteware and aluminum ware well as hardware at poor folks' prices.

Well, I left town in a hurry to git home an show the ole lady an the kids what I had fer them an so I fergot to come by The Sentinel office an pay up my prescription to the paper. I'm sending $1.50 in this letter caze I jest couldn't get erlong without the "Old Reliable." I reckon everybody in town an around takes it don't they? Ef they don't they orter caze they git all the city and county and lots uv state news in it and sees whurs the best place to trade when they git to town. I allus trade with The Sentinel advertisers caze I kno they aint shamed of their goods nor the prices nuther, besides that thur klerks air more courteous peers like.

Hereafter when I want to sell garden truck or country produce such as chickens an eggs an the likes or bye eny kine of store goods you kin jest put it down I'll go to Grenada caze I know I'll git all my crops worth an them thar store merchants treats you so nice you want to go back an trade.

chase of many stocks listed on the markets of the United States has been primarily for speculative purposes, and that the purchasers have bought them, not for the returns on the investment, but in the hope of large profits from a rise in market value.

If the Federal Reserve policy just announced means anything, many common stocks are due for a vigorous decline in the coming weeks to be followed by a stabilization of other business generally.

The suggestion that we need an armful of new swear words to meet modern necessities, has interested several language experts, one of whom a Syracuse professor, asserts that when we don't need 'em, all are too strong; and when the need is great none is adequate.

To Legalize Status of Aliens

The Senate has adopted the Copeland bill which provides for registration and issue of certificates of arrival on satisfying the commissioner general of immigration that they are persons of good moral character. Naturalization proceedings are simplified also by the bill. The measure opens the way for persons of good moral character, who entered the country before July 1, 1924, and who have no record of their admission, to obtain certificates of arrival and become American citizens.

One section of the bill authorizes the commissioner of naturalization to issue certificates to naturalized citizens who have procured citizenship abroad through the husband or father, or who were born abroad of American parents and who are citizens of the United States.

It is estimated that many thousands of aliens will be affected by this bill, though there seems to be no record of the exact total in spite of the census enumerations.

Yale experts assert that $15,000 is a fair salary for a professor of 25 years' experience. It takes just as long and requires just as much effort and energy to become a proficient newspaper editor, or a first class machinist, carpenter or mechanic. Why not apply the same rule to professions generally?

Unemployment is so general in Philadelphia that the Chamber of Commerce and Department of Public Works have agreed on a five-year construction program, during which nearly half a billion dollars will be expended for city work.

Mothers' Pensions

For several years efforts have been made to establish mother pensions in Pennsylvania but each time due to a lack of public information, the Legislature has passed by the question. The question is again before the present session. No institution or keeper of a private home that takes in children because they have become a public charge can take the place of a good mother. There is no place like home. It is conclusively demonstrated that nearly all crime, which is committed by boys and girls under 20 years of age, is due to idleness and want, and poor home life. Our duty toward these thousands of children does not end with public school courses, nor with court sentences. It is just beginning, and should continue until they are able to take their places in society, equipped with proper training and envioronment to make them productive and useful citizens.

To Investigate Bankruptcy

The United States Department of Commerce will undertake a scientific analysis of the records of bankruptcy firms throughout certain sections of the country, to determine the fundamental cause of business failure. The first city to be thus analyzed is Louisville, Ky., where an average of one grocery store closes each day, while an equal number start each month. Several cities will be studied. The department wants to find the real causes for retail bankruptcy—not merely the statistical data.

The survey will be in much greater detail than ever before attempted by the government, and it will concentrate particularly on such factors as the original financial structure and the relations of the investment to the size of the business.

Dictator Mussolini continues to issue edicts affecting every man's business, but designed to improve obsolete systems. His latest order is that men with families shall be given preference for jobs in every line of activity and political appointments. Another order stipulates that working women shall be assured of their positions during the period of childbirth. The interesting feature of these revolutionary orders is that they are literally obeyed without the intervention of an army of enforcement officers. Mussolini takes the place of a competent determined business manager—an example that is bound to have its effect on all civilized nations.

Building contracts in the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains have increased every year from 1923, when the total amounted to $3,891,000,000 to 1926 when the total amounted to $6,628,000,000.

The futuristic art also includes those future payments on cars, electric appliances, etc. To meet them on the average salary is indeed an art.

A laugh is as necessary to a human being as sunshine to a cabbage.

Nearly 135 years ago George Washington declared that "all obstructions to the execution of laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct, control, counteract, or awe the regular deliberation and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive of our fundamental principles and of fatal tendency". Who can say that he was mistaken?

Great Britain believes that "a good Indian is a dead Indian" and if they are not tied to a cannon's mouth and blown to bits they are defenseless victims of bombs dropped from airplanes. The latest taste of the iron hand has been felt by a troup of Irak camel drivers, 85 of whom were killed and many more injured.

George Washington

America is singularly fortunate in having for its greatest national figure, and in a way its patron saint, such a man as George Washington. Everything goes to show that he was a man of high principles and sterling personal character, such a man as is admirably adapted to set a mark for the emulation of the youth of this and of future generations.

George Washington was born at Pope's Creek, West Moreland County, Va., on February 22, 1732—just 197 years ago. The anniversary of his birth has been observed since before his death, which occurred at Mt. Vernon, Dec. 14, 1799. The first recorded celebration occurred at Newport R. I., on Feb. 12, 1781, when the French troops, by order of Lt. General Count de Rochambeau, paraded, fired a salute and suspended all work for the day in acknowledgment of his considerate and diplomatic treatment of our French allies. Records show the letter from Count de Rochambeau to General Washington, congratulating him and expressing his pleasure, and also General Washington's modest but sincere reply.

Washington's farewell address, teeming with the wisdom of a far-seeing statesman, will be read in legislative halls and public schools of this nation on his birthday anniversary. His standards of conduct in his relation to his fellow men, his willingness to serve his country and obey its laws, his principles, are the things that really matter because they serve as an example and a guide for each on-coming generation to live by.

Farmers Over-Taxed

Recent figures show that in Iowa, one of the foremost agricultural states of the Union, taxes took an average of 28 per cent. of the net rent before deducting the taxes of cash rented farms for 1926 and '27, or just double the 1913-'15 record.

Specifically the cash rent per acre was $4.54 in 1927, and the taxes amounted to $1.30 an acre. In 1913-15 the cash rent per acre was $4.26, while the taxes were 61 cents.

A readjustment of tax burdens whereby a larger percentage of the taxes heeded by both state and nation might be transferred to classes more able to pay than the farmers is one way to help relieve the farm situation. And if ability to pay is considered a fair basis of taxation, such a move would be both fair and equitable.

The very idea of the power and right of the people to establish government presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government—George Washington.

Sometimes a politician can't tell the people where he stands because he is on the run.

Ever Quiet!

Only after fifteen years of painstaking development by the scientists and engineers of the Research Laboratories of General Electric was a refrigerator designed which was thought worthy to bear the General Electric name.

This group of men sought to develop not only a highly efficient and economical electric refrigerator, but in addition, they demanded that it be superlatively quiet in operation.

And they succeeded. All the mechanism of the General Electric Refrigerator is up on top. The whole mechanism is hermetically sealed in a steel casing. The user never oils it, never tinkers with it—never needs to.

A small down payment and conveniently spaced terms will place any model in your home. See them all at our display rooms.

T. FRANK WEIR PASSED AWAY TUESDAY, FEB. 19

Mr. T. F. Weir passed away at his home six miles east of Grenada on Tuesday afternoon, Feb 19, in the sixty-seventh year of his age after a protracted illness. He had not been confined to his bed very long but had been rapidly declining, having had a weakened heart, and while he made an occasional trip to Grenada to visit his sons here and to transact ordinary business, yet it was realized that it would take something little less than a mircale to make him well again. Thus it may be said that his death was no great surprise, still it came with but little warning.

The funeral services were conducted from All Saints Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Revs. J. H. Holder of the Methodist church, and W. E. Farr, of the First Baptist church, the Episcopal church being temporarily without a rector.

Mr. Weir was a son of Thomas H. Weir and wife and was born sixty-six years ago February 3rd, not far from where he had lived all his life. Forty-four years ago he made Miss Hallie Angevine his bride, and to their union were born eight children, five sons and three daughters, seven of whom are living and grown. Besides the children, there are six grandchildren.

The surviving sons are T. H., S. A., J. M., L. T. and T. F. Weir, Jr., all of whom live in Grenada. The two daughters are Mrs. W. C. Williams, of Money, Miss., and Mrs. O. L. Thomas, of Memphis.

Two sisters als, remain. They are Mrs. Ida Angevine and Mrs. W. H. McCormick, of this place.

Frank Weir, as he was generally referred to, was a quiet, orderly citizen, who thought that he had all he could do to attend to his own affairs without speculating about what concerns others. He was a kind and thoughtful husband, an indulgent father and a clever and obliging neighbor, and a friend who took pleasure in conferring any favor within his power. He had the good will of all regardless of race or creed. The happy relation that existed in his household was a beautiful example of that love and devotion that always come of trust and faith.

The vacant chair in the home can but serve as a reminder of the inetitable end that awaits all the earth and carries the lesson not only to the loved ones of the departed but to his neighbors, and friends that their houses should be set in order for that day when the dark messenger shall call for their spirits and bear it back to the God who gave it.

May the best in the life of Frank Weir be gathered up by his family and friends and woven as a silver chord into their lives to bind them more tautly to the highest and the best and to that home for the faithful.

To the sorrowing The Sentinel offers sincere sympathy.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Rotary Hears Program Celebrating Founding 24 Years Ago.

At its meeting Tuesday noon, the Grenada Rotary Club observed the anniversary of the founding of the organization 24 years ago when a lawyer, Paul P. Harris, and a group of his friends in Chicago planted the seeds that have spread to 46 nations of the world today.

C. K. Bailey, chairman of the program committee, stated the purpose of the day's program, giving a brief history of that first meeting in Chicago in 1905. He introduced the first speaker, C. H. Calhoon, whose subject was "What Rotary Has Meant to Me". Mr. Calhoon brought home to his hearers the great good that he felt he had derived from membership in the club and he pointed out to them how a true observance of Rotary principles would make a better citizen of any person. He concluded by saying that he prized his membership in Rotary more than in any other one organization, except the church.

The next speaker, John T. Keeton, spoke on "Rotary's Relation to Business" and he proved most convincingly how the practice of the Rotary code of ethics by the business world would put the ordinary everyday transactions in a commercial way on a much higher plane.

J. R. Countiss, whose subject was "What Rotary Is Today", traced the spread of Rotary throughout the United States and the world, showing how it had grown from one small group of men in 1905 in one city to a membership of 150,000 in the various nations today. Dr. Countiss showed that the world today is just one great family when in the ages ago the single family was a unit to itself. He said that the families merged into tribes, the tribes into states and the states into nations. He showed how closely connected the peoples of the globe are today and he said that he felt Rotary, through its influence of brotherhood and friendliness, would be one of the great influences in preventing future wars.

President A. M. Carothers, in summarizing what the other speakers had said, spoke of Rotary's influence for good will between nations and mentioned several instances to prove this statement.

P. T. Lagrone, of the Mississippi Power & Light Co., was welcomed as a new member of the club. He is to receive the Rotary charge at the next meeting when two other new members will be enrolled.

Mr. Weems, of Meridian, was a guest at the luncheon.

E. E. Wilkins was named by the president as chairman of the "On to Clarksdale" committee, the function of which is to stimulate interest in the district conference to be held in the delta city next month.

GRENADA COLLEGE OFFERS GLEE CLUB PROGRAM FEB. 28

On next Thursday evening, Feb. 28th, at eight o'clock the Glee Club of Grenada College will present its annual program in the college auditorium. This year the club is composed of thirty-six voices under the direction of Miss Iona May Liller, who has had a great deal of experience in this kind of work. The numbers are to be given in costume, and much time has been expended on preparation of each number so that at present the whole program bids fair to be a very artistic affair.

Tickets are on sale at the college office for 35c and 50c. The college extends a welcome to all its friends to be present.

LEADING MASON DIES

Grenadians who knew him, and Masons, particularly, will be grieved to learn of the death of Geo. C. Hoskins which occurred at his home in Brookhaven Tuesday of this week.

He was a past grand commander of the Knights Templar and had long been prominent in Mississippi Masonic circles as well as in public affairs of the state.

COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS
By Lafayette Atkinson
County Superintendent

The enumeration of the educable children of the county is being completed this month. Patrons, trustees, pupils and drivers are requested to give assistance to the teachers in making the enumeration. This is a very vital part of the work of the school as it is the main source through which the larger part of the funds is secured for the operation and maintenance of the rural schools. Let's have the best and most complete enumeration that has ever been made in the county.

The Gore Springs High School will graduate, for the first time in the history of the school, five boys and girls who have completed four years of high school work. The trustees of the school have been working for a number of years to secure and maintain for the children of the eastern section of the county a good four-year high school for all residing therein. At the close of the session the school will have completed the first year's work of a full accredited high school. The people and trustees of the district are to be commended for their efforts in putting over a splendid school under the able supervision of their principal, O. D. Spratlin, and the assistance of an efficient corps of teachers.

The annual election of the trustees of the white and colored schools will be held at the various school buildings on March 2nd, Saturday, promptly at 2 o'clock. All teachers are requested to make announcement of the election at the school, notify the present trustees and urge the attendance of all patrons of the district.

The teachers of the county will meet at the court house Saturday, February 23rd, 10 o'clock. A special program has been prepared for the occasion and all teachers are requested to be present at this time. Dr. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada College, will address the association. Those who have heard Dr. Countiss on former occasions know that they will hear a splendid address for he always brings a message that is interesting and inspiring.

A number of important things will be discussed relative to the enumeration, trustee election, term reports and other things of interest to the closing of the year's work. Every teacher is expected to attend the meeting.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to acknowledge our sincere appreciation to the many who have been so thoughtful and sympathetic in our great bereavement over the loss of our dear husband and father. Your solicitude over his welfare during his long illness and the many gracious things you did for him as well as your manifest sympathy for us have made us realize more than ever before that God still rules in the hearts of mankind and that He is ever merciful to all of us. It is when sickness and sorrow invade the home that we are more than ever thankful for our friends for it is then that they mean more to us than ever before.

May He bless each of you for your goodness to us.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Hallie Weir and Children
Grenada, Miss., Feb. 21, 1929.

TO HOLD DISTRICT MEET OF KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

A district meeting of the Knights of Pythias will be held in Grenada at the Masonic Temple next Tuesday evening, Feb. 26th, at 7:30 o'clock. Grand officers, as well as officers of the subordinate lodges, will be at this meeting.

All Pythians, whether in good standing or not, are most earnestly invited. Grenada Knights are especially urged and expected to attend. You may enter the lodge room without giving the password or sign of courtesy.

Wm. P. FERGUSON,
Chancellor Commander.

JUDGESHIP SEEMS ASSURED

Washington, Feb. 14.—Attorney General Sargent has endorsed the proposed new federal judgeship for North Mississippi.

The bill introduced by Senator Hubert Stephens has been passed in the Senate and is now on the House calendar. The House judiciary committee referred the measure to the attorney general for an opinion. In his letter to the committee the attorney general said:

"I think in view of this situation and the great extent of territory served, the enactment of the bill will be in the public interest."

Unless the measure is caught in a legislative log jam it appears fairly certain of enactment before March 4. Senator Stephens has urged the necessity of this new court over a long period.

There are many applicants, both Republicans and so-called Hoover Democrats. If it is created it is likely the new judge will be named by Mr. Hoover instead of President Coolidge, on account of the court being established so near the end of Mr. Coolidge's term. Many of the applicants have been in Washington for some time.

MRS. KATE MITCHELL ESTES CALLED TO HER REWARD

Mrs. Kate Mitchell Estes was summoned to the other world on the night of February 17, at 9:10 o'clock. Interment was had the next day in Odd Fellows' cemetery after funeral services conducted from the residence by Revs. J. W. Lee, of Batesville, and E. R. Henderson of the Central Baptist church.

Mrs. Estes had been in a low state of health for quite a while, yet there were no alarming symptoms to give warning of the end which came so suddenly. She was quite complaining that night, and only a few minutes before the end, had taken a dose of medicine when attendants realized that dissolution was approaching.

Mrs. Estes was born at Myrtlevale, the beautiful country home where Mr. W. M. Mitchell, brother of Mrs. Estes, and his family, now reside. She was a daughter of John P. and Sarah Mitchell. Besides her brother, she is survived by five children, Mrs. S. M. Brown, Mrs. Bessie Perry and Mitchell, Bedford and Nowell Estes. Mrs. Perry resides in Memphis while Bedford is in the naval service. The other three are all residents of this community and all reflect most creditably on the good mother and their home training.

Mrs. Estes was truly a good woman. She met the duties of wife, mother and friend according to those standards which are planned in heaven and which are so pleasing to the Master. She was unpretentious. She was one of those who holds to the tenets that woman can exercise the greatest influence for good by first looking after her own home and those of her household and then in a quiet, motherly and gentle way, setting outsiders such an example as to inspire in them a zeal to do their best in this life and to keep in mind always those mansions of which the Saviour spoke so beautifully and so consolingly. She was reared in a Christian home, and did her best to live according to her early teachings. In her early years she united with the church and as the days, months and the years passed, she grew in beauty of character and in those visions of the great City above which can but inspire the holiest aims and purposes in those who would measure her character.

She was true to her faith. She met life's battles as best she could. There was no turning back or wavering in her make up. She believed in the Christian religion and aimed to so live that others might see that there was a beauty and a reality in what she professed. Her influence was for the good always.

To the sorrowing The Sentinel tenders the sincerest sympathy.

GLAD TO SEE MR. W. B. WINTER ON THE STREETS

The many friends of Mr. W. B. Winter, who resides ten miles in the country in district 4, were glad to see him in Grenada Monday, looking so well as he does after a siege with the flu during which time his family and friends were seriously concerned about him. He looks well and does not show the marks of his protracted illness. Mr. Winter is now about four score years of age and is one of the few remaining veterans of the Civil War. When advised that he would have to undergo a surgical operation at the Grenada Hospital within a few days, Mr. Winter's friends expressed renewed interest in his welfare and were glad to see him so optimistic about his condition.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK ANNOUNCES SELECTION OF NEW ASSISTANT CASHIER

At a special meeting of the board of directors of the First National Bank held Friday afternoon, February 15, H. R. Perry of Jackson was elected assistant cashier.

Mr. Perry is prominent in the banking circles of the state. He is a son of J. B. Perry of Grenada, who is vice president of the Grenada Bank and also general manager and vice president of the Mississippi Cotton Seed Products company.

Mr. Perry graduated from the Grenada High School and afterwards attended Mississippi College at Clinton. After the completion of his education, Mr. Perry was taken into the Grenada Bank by J. T. Thomas, president, and there he received a thorough training under Mr. Thomas, who is recognized as one of the foremost financiers and bankers of this state. Mr. Perry was then elected cashier of the Bank of Belzoni, which is a member of the Thomas chain of banks. He served in this capacity for two years, when his ability and efficiency were recognized by Mr. Thomas, and he was made auditor of his entire system, consisting of 14 banks scattered throughout north Mississippi. Mr. Perry held this position creditably for four years. J. S. Love then became superintendent of banks of this state, and considering Mr. Perry a young man of rare ability and exceptional qualifications, selected him as a state bank examiner.

Mr. Perry filled this position until a year ago when he resigned to become associated with the Union Indemnity Company, large bonding corporation of New Orleans. The president and other officers of this company were reluctant to accept Mr. Perry's resignation which he tendered to accept the position of assistant cashier of the First National Bank.

Mr. Perry assumed his new duties Saturday morning.

The above appeared in the Jackson Clarion-Ledger of February 17. The Sentinel but voices the opinion of the community in stating that Mr. Perry is one of the finest young men that Grenada has sent out in many years. He was reared in a home that has guarded well the care of its children. He has always been steady in his hatbits, and has never been known to indulge in some of the escapades which so many are saying now, "Oh, this is but a part of the present day; he will get on the track all right in due time". Mr. Perry never got off the track to get back on.

When he set out to work on his own responsibility, he went quietly about his duties and stuck to it last. He has made good wherever tried and The Sentinel feels that it can vouch for his making good as assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Jackson. This paper congratulates its good friend, G. Stirling, the president, on another exhibition of his good judgment and his knowledge of human nature in selecting Ray Perry.

FELT BAD AFTER EATING

"FOUR YEARS ago, I suffered with heartburn and bilious indigestion. Whatever I ate disagreed with me. Gas on my stomach made me very uncomfortable. My tongue was coated and my color was bad. "I needed a good laxative, and so my mother-in-law gave me some Black-Draught and told me to take it. I found it helped me very much, so I bought it for myself. Seems it was the very thing I needed. It is a fine family remedy, and I use it when I need something for constipation. "I also give Black-Draught to my children whenever they need something for colds or upset stomachs. Our whole family takes Black-Draught." —Mrs. G. C. Leary, 103 North Alston Ave., Durham, N. C.

Highway Program For State Is Urged By Creamerymen

Men Closely Associated With Farmers of the State Suggest that Citizenship Co-operate for Highway Improvement. Look With Favor on Bond Issue.

PAVED HIGHWAYS ARE ADVOCATED

Organization Would Have Mississippi Highways In Keeping with Progress of State.—Wants Highways that Are Not Surpassed by Hard-Surfaced Thoroughfares of Sister States.

The Mississippi Creamerymen's Association, realizing that any industry depending upon highway transportation under the present system of roads in Mississippi, is operating at a considerable loss to the producer, the investor and the consumer alike, has appointed a committee to make a study of the road situation in Mississippi and conduct a publicity campaign with the view of creating a demand from the people of the State for a system of better highways.

It is the belief of this committee that the construction of the main trunk-line highways should be of a permanent hard-surfaced nature, to be contracted for and their construction supervised by the State Highway Department, and that they should be paid for by the State of Mississippi from the State's portion of the present 5c gasoline tax and the automobile privilege tax. It is our belief that the counties should continue to receive their share of this 5c gasoline tax and automobile privilege tax for the construction and maintenance of their county systems of connecting roads. We do not believe that the State should levy ad valorem taxes for the purpose of highway construction, and we do not advocate such a system of finance. Facts gathered from over the nation tend to sustain us in the belief that our burdensome taxes will be materially reduced through the medium of an adequate system of paved trunk-line highways.

A large majority of the opinions we have received from officers of civic clubs, chambers of commerce, newspapers, legislators and other leaders over the State, coupled with the experience of other States, indicate that a bond issue commensurate with the paved-highway needs of our State and retired by gasoline and automobile privilege tax is the most popular method of finance. The Creamerymen's Association will continue to seek the advice and opinion of people interested in the advancement of Mississippi, and through this medium we ask the people generally to give us their views on this important question.

Think it over! Talk with your representatives in the Legislature about it! Let us keep pace with our sister States! Mississippi needs paved roads!
